Synopsis

65 Things to Do When You Retire: Travel offers practical, inspiring advice about how to have the time of your life, whether traveling with a group, with a spouse or partner, or on your own. More than 65 intrepid writers and travel experts, including Andrew McCarthy, Elizabeth Berg, George M. Taber, and Lynne Martin, reveal their own personal adventures and describe glorious getaways for retirees, including such exciting travel opportunities as international house-sitting, going to Italy for a writing workshop, wine tourism, volunteering to help communities in developing countries, doing archaeological digs, taking a retirement 'gap year' and chucking it all to see the world. These fun and illuminating essays reveal the best places for retirees to visit-- or relocate-- and show how to plan for your 'great escapes' without breaking the bank. This book is a follow-up to the successful 65 Things to Do When You Retire, which was recently hailed by The Wall Street Journal as '[one] of the year's best guides to later life...Reading the essays in Mark Evan Chimsky's 65 Things to Do When You Retire is like having your own brainstorming session with 65 highly knowledgeable men and women of a certain age and many different walks of life. The collection is full of candor, humor and wisdom.' Note: Thanks to the generosity of the contributing authors, all of whom provided essays on a pro-bono basis, the royalties generated from the sale of 65 Things to Do When You Retire: Travel will be donated to nonprofit organizations dedicated to preventing and curing cancer.

Customer Reviews

At the huge Book Expo America trade show in New York in May I stopped by the booth for Sellers Publishing - the publisher of this book - their display of decade specific titles caught my eye. This was one of the series which relates to decade or half-decade birthdays. Each has its own focus with short essays from folks youâ™ve heard of, and many you havenâ™t. Because I have friends who are now on social security, as well as those turning 70 this year, I chose two titles to review when I was offered review copies by the publisher. (The other title was 70 Things To Do When You Turn 70. You can see my review under that title here on .) This volume (65 things) is 400 pages long. Ironically, the 70 Things to Do book is just 304 pages long. I guess the publishers assume that the older you get the less time you have to read, since you should be out doing the things listed in the book! Unlike the more-generic 70 book, this one concentrates on Travel. The 65 experts whose essays are here include actor Andrew McCarthy (best known as part of Hollywoodâ™s brat pack in the 60s â who is only 51 years old but has a new career as a travel writer), Ed Perkins (who seems to be quoted in every travel article you read in a newspaper) and Andrew Collins, whose specialty is travel for LGBT folks. Most of the others were not previously known to me. Some of the short essays talk about permanently relocating while others talk about unusual places. And some are about the attitude of travelling. Donâ™t come here expecting many place specific ideas. And many discuss world travel which *if you*â™ve priced it lately â you know may not fall into the affordable category. Most of the essays in THIS book are about attitude and doing things to make your life meaningful.
